SIR,

I was interested to read in your issue of 22 June that the British Psychological Society (BPS) has agreed to fund research into the effects of the 2001 foot-and-mouth outbreak on the mental health of the British population. This is a very welcome move, and I am sure that the research will be of great value to the public and to the government.

However, I am concerned that the BPS has not yet agreed to fund research into the effects of the 2001 foot-and-mouth outbreak on the mental health of the British population. This is a very welcome move, and I am sure that the research will be of great value to the public and to the government.

The group says that the abuses are being committed by government forces, including the Philippine Army and the Philippine Air Force, as well as by paramilitary groups.

The group says that the abuses are being committed in the Sierra Madre mountains of Mindanao, which is a region of conflict between government forces and the Communist Party of the Philippines (CPP).

150 types of bird flu pose threat

By David S. Reardon, The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — A new study says there are at least 150 different types of bird flu viruses circulating in the wild, and some of them could pose a serious threat to humans. The study, published in the journal Emerging Infectious Diseases, found that the viruses are most common in Southeast Asia, but they have been found in other parts of the world as well. The researchers warn that the viruses could mutate and become more virulent, and that they could spread to humans through direct contact with infected birds or their droppings. They also say that the viruses could be spread to humans through the food chain, such as by eating undercooked poultry. The study is the largest ever of its kind, and it provides a detailed look at the genetic diversity of bird flu viruses. The researchers found that the viruses are highly adaptable, and they can evolve quickly. This means that they could become a major public health threat in the future. The study also found that the viruses are most common in wild birds, but they can also be found in domesticated birds, such as chickens and ducks. This suggests that the viruses could be spreading from wild birds to domesticated birds, and then to humans. The researchers say that they need to do more research to understand the full extent of the threat posed by these viruses. They also say that they need to develop better ways to monitor and control the spread of bird flu viruses.

Moussaoui gets life; taunts: 'US, you lost'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Thursday sentenced the last surviving 9/11 hijacker to life in prison without the possibility of parole. The judge also ordered the government to pay $1 million in damages to the victim's families.

Muhammad Atta, the leader of the 9/11 attacks, was killed in a plane crash on September 11, 2001. His brother, Nawaf, was also killed. The third brother, Khalid, was killed in a separate attack on the same day.

Moussaoui, who was the only surviving hijacker, was captured in France in 2001. He was held in a U.S. prison for several years before being sentenced to life in prison.

The judge, Judge Leonie Brinkema, said that Moussaoui's actions were "heinous, atrocious, and cruel." She also said that Moussaoui was "aware of the consequences of his actions." The judge ordered the government to pay $1 million in damages to the victim's families.

Figure 10.10: A plot of the function $f(x) = \sin(x)$ for $x \in [0, 2\pi]$. The function is periodic and oscillates between -1 and 1.

Figure 1 is a schematic representation of the experimental design. It shows a sequence of events: a subject is presented with a stimulus (a word or image), then a response is recorded, and finally, the subject is asked to provide a rating. The rating is then used to calculate the mean rating, which is compared to the mean rating of the control group. The diagram also shows the calculation of the mean rating for the control group and the mean rating for the experimental group.

Wanted to...
The first time I saw the movie "The Hot Chick" I was blown away. It was a perfect blend of comedy and drama, and it was a great example of how to do it right. I was a huge fan of the movie, and I was a huge fan of the director, F. Gary Gray. I was a huge fan of the movie, and I was a huge fan of the director, F. Gary Gray.

Drama is a minor key

By Jay Green & Steve

When it comes to drama, the key is to keep it real. The most powerful stories are those that are true to life. And that's why we're so drawn to them. We want to see the good, the bad, and the ugly. We want to see the struggle, the triumph, and the fall. We want to see the human condition in all its glory and its pain.

Beauty Show Out: On the beach, instead of spraying on fragrance that could have a chemical reaction when exposed to the sun, I slather on my favorite body oil with a light sesame scent. The sick glow can enhance your tan, too. —Adyana Saon (Marie Claire magazine editor in chief)
